Acknowledged African Leadership & the Real World

- 1) Acknowledged Africans are black people anywhere and everywhere in the world
- 2) Unacknowledged Africans are all other human beings (e.g. Europeans, Asians, etc.) who do not consider themselves black or do not know that they are black or know that they also have some black heritage, etc. Keep in mind that all of humanity started in Africa. True?
- 3) Africanisms are defined as elements of culture that are traceable to an African origin. Examples of Africanisms in the Americas, the Caribbean and Latin America, according to Dr. Carter G. Woodson, would include technical skills, arts, folklore, spirituality, attitudes toward authority, a tradition of generosity, and influences in religion, music, dance, drama, poetry and oratory.

“Every six months the Journal of Unabridged Genius has a different theme and contributors are able to submit their works online to any of these themes they wish to at any time. This is cutting edge. In addition there is a blog for less formal exchanges. These interactive, distinctive features allow scholars to contribute at any time to past and current issues. This entire process is peer reviewed.”
